

Lois Dale of Delaware, Ohio (left) and her daughter, Carolyn Dale Dunkin, of Marysville, Ohio donated a ladder-back rocking chair that has been in the Dale family continuously, once belonging to Samuel Futhey Dale. The ladies brought the chair from Ohio on their visit to the Dale/Engle/Walker House in September, 2016.

Edgar Shields of Chagrin Falls, Ohio (left) and Harold Shields of Maine, sit on chairs made c. 1860 by their great-grandfather, James Shields of Taylorville, Union County. The family donated the set of six plank-bottom spindle-back chairs, plus one slipper chair, to the society. Messrs Shields visited the society and the Dale/Engle/Walker House in November 2016, on a family trip to Virginia, Ohio, Maine, and Pennsylvania.

The 2017 Raise the Region fundraising drive will be in March. Watch for notice of this exciting event. Raise the Region, First Community Foundation Partnership of Pennsylvania, strives to raise much needed funds for area organizations and non-profits (such as your Union County Historical Society). Donations to UCHS will be used to digitize some of the old newspaper we have on microfilm, such as the Lewisburg Journal (1910-1952) and Mifflinburg Telegraph (1862-2002). Newspapers are a great source of information on people, places and events in the community and the world.

Union County Historical Society office, 103 S. Second Street, Lewisburg, PA 17837 570-524-8666 ~ info@unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org www.unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org

Dear UCHS Members and Friends,

For several months I have been making trips which necessitate driving for three hours (one way). Six hours total driving is a long time when the views are the same piece of interstate and construction zones again and again. To entertain and educate myself during the long stretches, I listen to the Great Courses offered in CD format. I manage four lectures in the three hours, and recently I completed a course of 48 lectures entitled "Turning Points in American History" by Professor Edward T. O'Donnell, whose course I highly recommend.

One of the points O'Donnell's lectures often made is that history is full of surprises, which in retrospect appear almost inevitable. But nothing in history was inevitable. It could have been different. The kind of change which changes the trajectory of events, which no one saw coming and after which things were never the same, is the result of individual decisions. Who within the context of the 19th century expected or could foresee the ramifications of the end of slavery, the outcome of the battle of Antietam (1862), the 19th Amendment giving the vote to women (1917), the New Deal (1933), Einstein's letter to Franklin D. Roosevelt (1939), suburbanization (following 1945), the birth of television (1950), The Pill (1960), the showdown in Birmingham, Alabama (1963), Watergate (1974), the personal computer (1975), the collapse of the Soviet Union (1989), and 9/11 attacks (2001)? This list names some of O'Donnell's "Turning Points," each of which with their attendant unanticipated consequences changed the course of history, as did inventions such as rail transportation, automobiles, and air travel. History is exciting: just when we think things will never change, they do and in ways we never imagined!

The UCHS provides resources and programming to researchers into the past who want to investigate their own "turning points," who want to understand the contexts of what came before and what came after. For those who want to know how people lived, how they endured hard times, and what they did to survive another day, the UCHS can provide resources and suggestions, and as one finds the answers, the UCHS can provide outlets for that newly gained knowledge that we all can learn from.

In the coming year, the Union County Historical Society will have an emphasis on the nation's entry into World War I, 100 years ago, and how that war affected Union County and the people of this place. Other topics will include buggy manufacturing, barn architecture, and Union County's landscapes and green spaces. I hope to see you at these programs. Drop by the office in the courthouse and say "Hello." Read the latest Heritage book, and buy a deck of cards, each card sporting an historical photo of Union County. We have history for you!

Best wishes, Lois Huffines, President

February Programs at the Dale/Engle/Walker House, 1471 Strawbridge Rd., Lewisburg

The Dale/Engle/Walker property is many things: the site of a two-mile walking trail beside the Buffalo Creek and atop a high ridge; a working farm in Buffalo Township outside of Lewisburg at which there are historical re-enactments; a late 18th-/early 19th-century architectural gem, and home to the Dales, Engles, and Walkers, as well as a slave site from 1793 until the 1840s.

Since 2003, the Union County Historical Society has presented new material by those working in the field of Black History, locally and statewide, during February Black History Month. Included have been diverse topics such as the Underground Railroad, both its myth and reality, Pennsylvania's African-Americans serving in the Civil War, the trades and backgrounds of area African Americans, and the importance of local, regional and national archives and historic sites. Exhibits accompanying the talks at Dale/Engle/Walker have focused on local artifacts, including old black dolls from New Berlin and Hartley Township; the documents on which research is based, such as wills, letters, newspaper advertisements, manumission papers; and oral histories.

February programs are free and open to the public, and are supported, in part, by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission (PHMC).

Exhibit viewing and discussion will be available starting at 1:30 pm both Sundays, Feb. 19 and 26. A 1793 hearth tour where the Dale's slave Dinah worked presumably along with others, will also be an option following the presentations.

The Julia Quest Sunday, February 19, 2017 at 2 PM

by researchers Jane Luther and Mary Sieminski both of Lycoming County, PA

Presenter Jane Luther, a resident of Jersey Shore, has family roots in Hartley Township dating from at least 1830. She has information that suggests that she is related to African American author Julia Collins through her great-grandparents.

Co-presenter, Mary Sieminski, a retired librarian from Williamsport, is the manager of the Lycoming County Women's History Collection and is fascinated by local and women's history. Mary writes a monthly column on Lycoming County women for the Williamsport Sun Gazette.

Their subject, Julia C. Collins, is the author of The Curse of Caste; or the Slave Bride, the first novel published by an African American woman. The book was written in 1865 while Collins was a schoolteacher for the African American children of

Essay ist, teacher, and author, her work,
The Carse of Caste, is considered to be among the first published novels by an African American woman, in 1865, it was serialized in the African Methodist Episcopal Christian Recorder, a publication with nationwide circulation. Her life and writings provide a glimpse into the rarely documented experiences of nineteenticentury African American women, their familles, and their communities.

Williamsport. A Pennsylvania state historical marker commemorating her was placed on the River Walk in Williamsport in 2010. Sadly, little is known about Collins' life, not her name at birth nor when or where she was born.

Jane Luther and Mary Sieminski are determined to change that and have been searching for traces of Julia for eight years, discovering many links to Julia in Union County. They will take the audience on a journey — of how they have traced these links and others in Williamsport and Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, New York, and Connecticut.

Directions to the Dale/Engle/Walker House: from Rte 15 in Lewisburg, take Rte 192 west for 1.5 miles, turn north onto Strawbridge Road and continue 1.5 miles to the site. Drive up the lane to the parking area near the house. Signs are posted.

Dead or Alive: African-American Access to End-of-Life Healthcare in Union County Sunday, February 26, 2017 at 2 PM

by historian Kate Hastings of Watsontown, PA

Kate Hastings' current research asks the question: "Did African American residents of Union County have equal access to health care, particularly at the end of their lives?"

Her presentation uses data from public health records of citizens of Union County in the mid-20th century to determine whether there were patterns of disease and access to care that were race-specific. The effects of Spanish Influenza, tuberculosis, and polio will be discussed, as well as the changing patterns influenced by the introduction of antibiotics.

Hastings, who teaches at Susquehanna University, has presented other talks in our Black History series since its inception, and has been an inspirational resource for others. She has published on several aspects of local black history that focus on working communities of free African Americans in Union County, particularly those living in Lewisburg, Winfield, and Hartley Township since the early 1800s. Her work is featured in the UCHS Heritage series, African Americans in Union County: Slave and Free, available at the UCHS office in the Union County Courthouse, and from www.unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org

Buggy Town

By the end of the 19th century, Mifflinburg had earned the nickname "Buggy Town" for the number of manufacturers and buggies made in this small borough. The industry adopted new trends in manufacturing, marketing and financing. At the same time, manufacturers enjoyed the support of the businesses in Mifflinburg and beyond.

The Mifflinburg Buggy Museum preserves the property of William A. Heiss, one of Mifflinburg's buggy makers. The Museum complex includes a modern Visitor Center with changing exhibits, the Heiss family home, the original buggy factory, the reconstructed carriage house and the showroom. The Museum has recently expanded its collection to include automobiles. Guided tours of the historic buildings allow visitors to step back in time and learn about the manufacturing and selling process as well as peak into the lives of the Heiss family.

Bronwen Anderson-Sanders began her career with the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission working at the Daniel Boone Homestead, the Conrad Weiser Homestead, and Washington Crossing Historic Park. She also worked as Tour Director at the Historical Society of Talbot County, Maryland. Mrs. Sanders began working at the Buggy Museum in 1997, becoming executive director in 2000. Visit www.buggymuseum.org for information on this fascinating local museum.

Becoming Buggy Town Thursday, April 20, 6 PM

Program and Dinner at Christ's United Lutheran "Four Bells" Church 13765 Old Turnpike Road (Route 45), Millmont, PA

Bronwen Sanders, Executive Director of the Mifflinburg Buggy Museum, will focus on the factors that helped Mifflinburg achieve the status of Buggy Town. According to Sanders, "Although we are still counting, still discovering buggy makers, Mifflinburg was home to 90 separate independent manufacturers over an 84 year period. That phenomenal occurrence did not happen in a vacuum, it took many parallel industries and businesses to catapult the town to this standing. My presentation will discuss banks, hardware stores, dealers and buggy makers, as well as their marketing efforts."

The program will follow a dinner of roast turkey, vegetables, dessert, and beverages, served family-style at the "Four Bells" Church in Millmont.

reservations are required. Local residents will receive detailed information and reservation forms in March. Others who wish to attend may contact the UCHS office by phone: 570-524-8666, or email: info@unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org.

Union County History

Dear UCHS Members:

The October issue of ACCOUNTS of Union County History is now on line. You can see your copy at: http://www.unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org/Accounts/Oct2016/TOC.html There is much to fascinate you:

Jean Hormell tells the story of Allenwood and the Allenwood Store, a business founded by her great-great-grandfather, HP Allen, in 1861. In 1880 Mr. Allen built the impressive brick building so visible today as you drive through Allenwood.

Richard Nornhold provides a primer on rifles made by Union and Snyder County gunsmiths. More than 100 gunsmiths comprised the Upper Susquehanna School, crafting these rifles, renown when they were made, and avidly collected today.

Douglas and Mary Candland describe the more than two-hundred-year-old farmhouse on Stein Lane, Lewisburg, they have lived in for the past 48 years. A tenant farm, a veterinarian practice, and then a medical office, the Candlands uncover the house's history through interviews and a careful search of property records.

Tom Walker solves a mystery involving the address on letters sent home by his father during World War II. The address on the envelopes, 104 Market Street, New Berlin, doesn't match where his family lived. Read how Walker solves this mystery.

Sidney Dreese introduces us to a short-lived newspaper in Mifflinburg of the 1850s and 1860s, the Union County Press, that reveals how the home front supported the war effort during the Civil War. Finally, ACCOUNTS presents lists complied by Jeannette Lasansky and Richard Sauers, of businesses in Lewisburg and Union County, now updated to 2016. Looking at the businesses' locations, wares, and founding dates, you will be amazed at how many multi-generation businesses have formed the commercial fabric of Union County.

I would be delighted to talk with you about writing an essay for ACCOUNTS. Message me by email.

Dale/Engle/Walker Property Update by Jeannette Lasansky, Property Manager

Community Work Efforts Combine to Make the Union County Historical Society's Dale/Engle/Walker Site Including the Linn Conservancy's Dales' Ridge Trail Ready for Coming Seasons

On a gorgeous November 12th morning, a fall work effort at the Dale/Engle/Walker property involved nearly 30 Bucknell students and staff, coordinated by assistant property manager Eric Imgrund, Union County board member Doug Hovey, and property manager, Jeannette Lasansky. Extensive raking, removal of invasive plants and fallen branches were among the top priorities and were completed.

Bucknell Professor Jeff Trop along with Nicola Certo and nine other Bucknell Environmental Club members worked with Dale's Ridge Chief Trail Steward retired Professor Tom Travis, Linda & David Elton, Diane Lengle, and eight members of BU's Kappa Sigma-Alpha Phi. Other Bucknell students: Jake Malavsky, Owen Parent, and Joe Elvin, assisted in moving heavy items in the Dale House and to the wagon shed before joining the others in raking and cutting operations. William Lasansky and Fred Swanger, an assistant property manager, provided logistical support, including food and beverage for the participants.

Earlier in the week, New Enterprise Stone, located in Winfield and along Rte 192, provided time and materials in the restoration of the parking area for the Dale's Ridge Trail and sections of the farm lane as arranged by Mike Erdley, of New Enterprise. New Enterprise, formerly known as Eastern Industries, has helped maintain the parking area, trail entrance and farm lane since 2001, while Dave Gutelius Excavating in Mifflinburg has maintained the property's south lane that is used in special events. Geoff Goodenow, Linn Conservancy Coordinator, has been instrumental on other aspects of the Dale's Ridge Trail parking area restoration since the new Strawbridge Road Bridge was completed a year ago.

The next work effort at the 1793 farm property will be either the morning of Saturday March 25 or April 1, 2017. To express an interest in helping on such efforts contact the Historical Society at info@unioncountyhistoricalsociety.org, or one of the volunteer property managers.

The House in Spring

INTERPRETIVE AND SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE by Diane Lengle

Interesting 2017 Spring-Summer season of tours and events at the Dale/Engle/Walker House

We will kick off the season with Dairy Month events on Sundays, June 4 and 11. The house will be open from 2 to 4 PM, with tours offered at 2:15 and 3:00.

Celebrate Rural Heritage on Saturday, July 8 will focus on the years 1914-1940, highlighting Liberty Gardens, canning and preserving, old tractors, and woodworking on a wood lathe. The house will be open for tours again on the first and second Sundays in September and October.

More I / SE Members Sought

The Interpretive/Special Events committee members have a wonderful time at historical society events, but we could use some help. One specific area would be persons interested in the tool barn – explaining the equipment to visitors. You don't have to be a public speaker or make a large time commitment, and we can give you background information on the items. Sometimes just being on hand at events is a great help – selling the homemade ice cream, helping kids with activities, explaining what's growing in the gardens. If you are interested, please contact Diane Lengle at dianelengle@gmail.com or (570) 966-1783, or contact the UCHS office at info@unioncountyhistoricalsociety or (570) 524-8666.

Watch for more information in the summer issue of the newsletter and on the society website.

Seeking the Next Editor of ACCOUNTS

As you may know, I have been the editor of the Society's on-line journal, ACCOUNTS of Union County History, since its founding some 6 years ago. I am now at work on February's issue, which again will contain some very good reading.

It is, however, time for the journal to have a new person at the helm. This is a call for persons who would like to be the Editor for some years to come. Would you be that person? What's entailed is this:

- The journal comes out twice a year (February and September) and contains 6 articles each. Each article needs editing to prepare it for publication usually correcting typos, suggesting better phrasing here and there, formatting it to ACCOUNTS style, and adding the author's illustrations.
- I create the Front Matter and End Matter of each issue, consisting mainly of the Table of Contents, message from the Editor, and issue index.
- The completed issue is then put on line by the Society's webmaster.
- The largest task, and a very rewarding one, is stimulating authors to write what they know. It involves spotting a potential, interesting article, and inviting the person to write it up. About half of the articles come in of the author's volition, while the others emerge at your invitation.

Both you and the authors have the satisfaction of directly augmenting the permanent record of Union County's history.

While the editor has a fair amount to do, I have not found that it's a heavy burden. Rather, it allows me to serve the Society and our county's history in a focused and creative way, using time and effort I would be volunteering anyway.

Are you interested in being editor and adding your own creative touch? I'll be happy to answer your questions. Final choice is made the Society's president and the Society's Board.
